

Brachychiton bidwillii

Small Tree

Native Semi-deciduous

Flowering: Yes

Colour

Very good drought resistant plant, responsible for producing spectacular flowers in springtime; notably dropping their large, hand-shaped leaves before flowering.

Flower production increases with age and after 8 years or so they may produce bunches coming directly from the trunk, as well as the usual flowers on twigs and branches.

Suitable for larger pots planters and tubs. With a preference for moist, well-drained soils in full sun to part shade.
